TRY ERE YOU DESPAIR.
HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.
Sir,—Several months ago, I was commissioned to inform you of the success of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, in the cure of a man named Thomas Evans, in the employ of Mr. Charles Tompson, of this neighbourhood. I did write a letter to you at the time, but find that it has remained in my desk; there is this advantage, however, in my delay, that I am now enabled to state that the man has remained in perfect health to the present moment. His disease, I think, was goitre, for he had large lumps in his neck, and the whole of his body was covered with a peculiar kind of pimple, from which constantly exuded a pale white watery mucous. He had, previous to trying your remedies, expended a very considerable sum in medecine, to no effect, but with Holloway's Pills and Ointment his cure was only the work of a fortnight.
Since the above occurred, I have known of another case. A man, of about fifty years of age, employed by John Peter, Esq., J.P. This poor fellow had for a year or more, been bent double from some disease (I suppose rheumatism,) caused by exposure to wet and cold. He was greatly afflicted with pains, and it was quite impossible for him to raise his body higher than at right angles to his legs. In less than a week he was quite well. The effect seemed to me little short of a miracle.
I am, &c.,
DONALD M'KELLAR.

LATER ENGLISH NEWS.

By the Kate we have English news to the 13th June, one week later than had previously been received.

There had been no event, either foreign or domestic, of very great interest.

The Queen and Royal Family were well.

Trade continued pretty good. Consols maintained their price, and had rather a tendency to rise, the quotation on the 13th June at two P.M., being 92⅛ to ¼. There had been no alteration in the price of wool. Tallow was on the decline.

The Parliamentary Oaths' Bill was read a third time and passed by a majority of 272 to 206.

Mr. D'Israeli had given notice of his intention to move, that the House go into Committee to enquire into the state of the nation.

Mr. Hawes stated in the House of Commons on the 8th June, that he should not be able to bring up the Australian Colonies Bill before the 11th, but he would fix a day for the second reading, that would afford ample time for its consideration.

There had been an extensive distribution of honors and promotions on account of the close of the war in India. Lord Dalhousie was made a Marquis, Lord Gough a Viscount, and Generals Thackwell, Gilbert, and Whish received the Grand Cross of the Bath.

The French forces had made themselves masters of all the outskirts of Rome, and only delayed storming from the immense destruction of works of art which must necessarily take place. What they will do when they have captured the city appears to be a mystery, even to the French ministry.

The Russian reinforcements were still marching into Austria, and the Austrians were gradually occupying the strong places of Lombardy and Piedmont.

We shall continue our summary and extracts to-morrow.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

NOTICES OF MOTION AND ORDERS OF THE DAY.

Tuesday, September 25.

NOTICES OF MOTION.

1. Mr. Mackinnon to move, That this Council having taken into consideration the Returns of the Revenue and Expenditure of the district of Port Phillip, laid on the table of the House by the Colonial Secretary, resolves,—

1. That in the opinion of this Council, Port Phillip, from its great distance from the seat of central Government, at Sydney, ought never to have been connected, either territorially or financially, with the older colony of New South Wales Proper; an opinion fully borne out by the fact, that it was found necessary, as early as 1839, to establish there branches of almost every department of the public service existing in Sydney.

2. That from its first settlement in 1836 (by colonists from Van Diemen's Land) up to the present time, the unparalleled prosperity of Port Phillip is mainly ascribable to the direct introduction of labour, capital, and stock, from Great Britain and Van Diemen's Land; and that Port Phillip, therefore, is not a natural extension of the colony of New South Wales.

3. That so far from Port Phillip ever having been a burden in any way to New South Wales, it is the deliberate opinion of this Council, that very great benefit was conferred on the latter by the ready and highly profitable market that was for many years supplied for its surplus stock, by the former.

4. That in the opinion of this Council a settlement so situated and so formed, had a clear and manifest claim in justice to the exclusive use of all revenues raised within itself.

5. That this Council, in the name and on behalf of the inhabitants of New South Wales Proper, disclaims all participation in the unjustifiable spoliation to which they see by the said returns the district of Port Phillip has been subjected—a spoliation unheard of in the annals of any colony, unsanctioned by any precedent, and as repugnant to correct principle, as it has been unjust and oppressive in practice.

6. That, as well to do an act of common justice to the inhabitants of Port Phillip, as to vindicate the character of New South Wales Proper from imputations of an unpleasant nature, which under existing circumstances may fairly attach to it, this Council declares it to be its deliberate opinion that the sum of £266,882 2s. 6½d., shown by the said returns to be the excess of revenue over expenditure in the said district of Port Phillip, from its first settlement in 1836, up to 31st December, 1848, together with all balances that may accrue from 1st January, 1849, up to the final separation of Port Phillip from New South Wales Proper, be paid back to the said district of Port Phillip, out of the general and territorial revenue of New South Wales Proper, in the exact proportions in which each of these has been benefitted by the surplus revenues of Port Phillip.

7. That the foregoing resolutions be embodied in an humble address to the Queen, praying that she may be graciously pleased to give the necessary instructions for carrying out the views of this Council as therein expressed.

8. That h[illegible]ellency the Governor be requested to forward [illegible]s to the Queen, and to recommend [illegible]ayer of it.

2. Mr. Wentworth to move for leave to bring in a Bill to Incorporate and Endow a University, to be called the University of Sydney.

3. Mr. Wentworth to move, That an address be presented to his Excellency the Governor, praying that he will be pleased to recommend to this House the insertion in the Bill for incorporating and endowing a University, to be called the University of Sydney, the money or endowment clauses suggested in the Report of the Select Committee appointed to inquire into and to report upon the best means of instituting a university for the promotion of literature and science, to be endowed at the public expense—such suggestion being, that £5000 a year be appropriated from the General Revenue as a fund for salaries, a library, and other necessary annual expenses; and £30,000 as a fund for the building of the said university, with an understanding that his Excellency is to be empowered, if it be necessary, to issue debentures for the latter amount, secured on the general revenue.

ASSIZE INTELLIGENCE.

BATHURST CIRCUIT COURT.

His Honor Mr. Justice Dickinson, accompanied by the Clerk of the Arraigns, arrived at Bathurst about 2 P.M. on Wednesday, and put up at the Victoria Inn, kept by Mr. Rotton. At 3 P.M. His Honor attended Divine Worship at All Saints' Church, where service was performed by the Rev. T. Sharp. On Thursday, at 10 A.M., the Court was opened—the sittings on this occasion being held in the new Court House. The Barristers present were the Solicitor-General, A. T. Holroyd and W. A. Purefoy, Esquires. Attorneys—J. W. Bligh, J. M. Dillon, S. Home, J. N. M'Intosh, F. Stephen, S. Wadeson, and J. Walsh, Esquires. Mr. Uhr appeared to represent and officiate for the Sheriff. After the usual Proclamation for the Suppression of Vice and Immorality had been read, the first case called was—

MURDER.

William Murray was indicted for the wilful murder of Martin Shannon, at Dabbo, on the 12th February last. The prisoner, on being arraigned, pleaded not guilty. He stated that he had emplyed Mr. Holroyd and Mr. Wadeson to defend him. Mr. H., who was then in Court, said he had not yet received his brief. The Solicitor-General consented that the case should stand remanded until the next case was disposed of.

ATTEMPT AT RAPE.

James Cooper was indicted for an attempt to commit a rape on the person of Margaret Morrison, at a place called Cowan Creek, in the district of Hartley. It appeared that the prosecutrix was living in a hut with four children, the oldest only six years old, in a very lonely situation, no other residents within twelve miles; her husband was employed as a shepherd eighteen miles distant. That on the 19th February last, the prisoner arrived at this hut about sundown, having a dray drawn by four bullocks; he was invited in, and told he might make his bed down near the children, and remain there during the night; he sat down by the fire, and after doing so a short time he proposed some offers, which were repulsed; shortly after this, he seized the woman in his arms and carried her out of the hut, and took her some distance from it, threw her down on the grass and attempted to effect his purpose; the woman struggled hard and prevented him from accomplishing his object. The only evidence was that of the prosecutrix and her husband, to whom she had reported the attack. The attempt was clearly brought home to the prisoner, and the Jury, without a moment's consultation, returned a verdict of guilty.

His Honor, in passing sentence, regretted that the law did not allow him to pass a heavier sentence than the one he was about to pass, which was—that he should be confined two years in Bathurst Gaol with hard labour; at the end of that time to enter into recognizances—himself in £100 and two sureties of £50, to be of good behaviour for twelve months, and to remain in gaol until such sureties are entered into.

MURDER.

William Murray, who had been arraigned at the opening of the Court for the wilful murder of Martin Shannon, on the 12th February last, was then placed at the bar.

Defended by Mr. Holroyd, assisted by Mr. Wadeson.

There were eight witnesses called for the prosecution; but the case depended almost solely on the evidence of two of these—William Robinson and John Haffner. The former swore that he had seen both the prisoner and the deceased at Hieronymus' public-house, at Dabbo, on the day of the races there, on the 12th February. From the evidence of this witness it appeared that about dusk he had seen the prisoner lying down in the stables under a carriage; that shortly after this, he saw the deceased standing near the end of the inn, and that subsequently he was standing near the stable, when he heard several blows inflicted, which sounded hollow; and about an hour after, on going into the stable with a lighted candle, he found the deceased lying dead; near the door there was a cabbage-tree hat, which this witness at first swore positively to as having seen on the head of the prisoner during the day; but on cross-examination he would not swear positively to it. On opening the waistcoat of the deceased, it appeared that several wounds had been inflicted on the chest, and one on the left ribs. The other witness—Haffner, swore that he saw the deceased go into the stable closely followed by the prisoner; shortly after he heard some blows inflicted that sounded hollow, and heard the deceased exclaim—"Oh Murray, you are an unmerciful man," this witness went into the stable, and in doing so stumbled over a stick, which he picked up, and aimed two blows at the man that was standing up in the stable, who turned on the witness, who was obliged to run out, the prisoner following; when he came outside witness was enabled to identify the prisoner as the man, from a light that came from the kitchen window. He said in his examination in chief, the light came from the kitchen window, but when under cross-examination by Mr. Holroyd, he said he was not sure that there was any window in the kitchen, but that the light came from the kitchen, either through the doorway, there being no door, or through some chinks in the slabs. Mr. Holroyd said, that the depositions made by this witness before the magistrates should be put in and read; this was done, when it appeared that there were some discrepancies between it and his present statement, but not very material ones. This witness underwent a long cross-examination, in which it was endeavoured to saddle Haffner with the crime. He admitted there was recent blood on his trousers and shirt, which he accounted for by saying he had assisted to carry a beast that had been slaughtered; he said he knew that there had been an ill-feeling between the prisoner and the deceased, the latter having accused the former of stealing rum, but this was fourteen months before the murder. Mr. Charles Toogood, Surgeon, proved the number and nature of the wounds that had been inflicted on the deceased; there were six wounds on the chest, and one on the ribs on the left side over the region of the heart—this wound was no doubt the cause of death; all the wounds appeared to have been inflicted by a sharp instrument. The prisoner having heard that he was suspected of the murder, gave himself up to the chief constable. For the defence, James Rogers was called, who swore that on the evening named he had seen the prisoner lying down very drunk on some straw in the farthest stall on the right hand side of the stable entering the door; the witnesses for the prosecution swore that the prisoner was lying down under a carriage in the last stall on the left. His Honor summed up at very considerable length; the Jury after an absence of half an hour returned into Court, and requested to know whether a verdict of the majority of Jurors could be recorded; or whether it could not. [Up to the time of receiving letters at the Post Office the Jury had not agreed on their verdict—it was announced that the Court would be adjourned until to-morrow (Friday), at nine o'clock.]

This case occupied the Court upwards of six hours.

Andrew Little and William Redfern Watts, Esqrs., were sworn in magistrates of the territory.

FORGERY.

James Roach was indicted for uttering a forged order for the payment of money. It appeared that on the 15th of the present month the prisoner went to the store of Mr. Joseph Simmons and represented himself as owner of horse stock; had sold a horse and received a check in payment; placed the check on the counter; it was drawn for £8 10s., purporting to be by S. Raymond, Esq., on the Commercial Bank, Sydney, and said he wanted to purchase some goods, and would call again in the evening; he did so, and selected goods to the amount of £7 16s., and received 14s. in silver; some of the goods he took with him, and the rest were sent to Mr. Mulvey's, where he said he lodged; shortly after it was discovered it was a forgery the prisoner was apprehended. The case was a very clear one. The Jury, without retiring, returned a verdict of guilty. Sentenced to Bathurst Gaol for two years, with hard labour.

Manslaughter.—On Friday last, Inspector Higgins, of the Sydney Police, was sent for to see a woman named Ann Russell, then an inmate of the Benevolent Asylum, who made a complaint to him of one James Pickering, the keeper of a brothel in Pitt-street, having violently assaulted her; as she then appeared to be in a dying state, Mr. Higgins applied to Alderman Egan, who immediately repaired to the Asylum, to take the statement. Having heard her account of the transaction, Alderman Egan issued a warrant for the apprehension of Pickering, and on his appearance before the dying woman, her statement was repeated in his presence. It was to the following effect:— that on Friday, the 14th instant, she went to Pickering's residence, next door to the Cottage of Content, Pitt-street, about some clothes which belonged to her, when he (the prisoner) commenced swearing at her, took her by the shoulders and pushed her out; she asked him for some money he owed her, when he struck her across the neck and knocked her down: the fall blackened her eyes and hurt her nose; he kicked her along the verandah, and pitched her down some four or five steps leading from the verandah to the footway. She had been living as a servant in the house, and had never had any words with the prisoner. She identified the prisoner before her as the man of whom she had been speaking. Pickering cross-examined the woman, but did not shake her statement in any way. She was found lying on the footway, by constable Steep, who advised her to go home, which she did. On Monday, she was taken to the Benevolent Asylum, and the next day, erysipelas set in, the result of the injuries she had received. About 11 o'clock on Friday night, she ceased to live. On Saturday, an inquest was held on the body, when the statement of the unfortunate deceased was fully borne out by the testimony of other witnesses. The Jury found a verdict of manslaughter against James Pickering, who was thereupon committed by the Coroner to take his trial.

Sudden Death.—An inquest was held at Nicol's, the Coach and Horses, Cumberland-street, on the body of Johanna Kearney, then and there lying dead. It appeared from the evidence of Mrs. Nicol, daughter of the deceased, that on Friday she (Mrs. Kearney) was in her usual health; about one o'clock she went up stairs to bring her mother down to dinner, but as she was in bed, and apparently asleep, Mrs. Nicol did not disturb her; on returning in a short time afterwards, she found her mother lying on the floor, apparently in hysterics; she immediately sent for Mr. Harpur, surgeon, in the mean time bathing her head with cold water, which Mrs. K. said did her good; shortly afterwards, however, she became insensible, and so remained until about five o'clock, when she expired. Mr. Harpur having deposed that death was the result of apoplexy, the Jury found a verdict of died by the visitation of God.

Immigration.—The Victoria's immigrants were thus disposed of: Forwarded to Parramatta, 10; to Maitland, 114; to Bathurst, 50; received into Hyde Park Barracks, 24; sent to hospital, 1; hired from the ship, 30; left the ship on their own account, 60, Total souls, 289.

Police Office.—The sitting Magistrates on Saturday were, the Mayor and Alderman Egan. Neither of the three appointed by the roster was in attendance; of the eighteen magistrates composing the roster for the week, only four fulfilled the appointment, namely, Messrs. Gilchrist, Josephson, and Moir, and Captain Moriarty. Mr. Smart, Alderman Thurlow, and Mr. Towns, have been appointed for this day (Monday.)

Stolen Property.—On Friday afternoon, a woman named Cole was taken into custody by Sergeant Prince, of the Sydney Police, on suspicion of stealing some towels and a pillow case, marked Boyd. No owner having been discovered, and the woman evading enquiry as to the manner of her becoming possessed of them, she was on Saturday remanded until this day, (Monday.)—On Friday afternoon, Robert Goulding, of Brickfield Hill, general dealer, gave Louisa Ralph into the custody of Sergeant Guy, for having on the 1st of June last, pawned to him a silver spoon, which had been stolen from Mr. Henry Tebbutt, of York-street. She stands remanded until to-day.

Sacrilege.—On the evening of Friday, the 21st instant, the Scots Church, Church-hill, was burglariously entered, when two or three table napkins and as many silk handkerchiefs, together with the minister's pulpit gown, were stolen.

Mr. Solomon's Robbery.—Mr. Solomon has handed to us the following, as a statement of the manner in which his house was robbed on Thursday night:—"Between the hours of nine and ten o'clock on Thursday night, the 20th instant, my son was alarmed by finding the entrance door from Elizabeth-street to my house, (which door is generally kept closed) open. On an alarm being given, it was ascertained that some person or persons had effected an entrance, broke open my sleeping-room door, afterwards broke open the drawers in my room, and from thence extracted two cash boxes, containing £260. A quantity of wearing apparel was also packed up, and other articles removed ready for being carried off. There is little doubt that if the robbers had not been disturbed, a greater loss would have been sustained."

Errata.—In the letter preceding the report of the Equity proceedings in Smart and another v. Hughes and others, published in Saturday's Herald, for "trustees of Mr. Hughes," in the sixth and eleventh lines, read "trustees of Mrs. Hughes;" in the Report, second column, fourth paragraph from the top, after the words "but the Lord" insert "Chancellor;" and in the fourth line from the end of the Report, for "not set at rest," read "now set at rest."

Mr. Lyons requests the attention of buyers to his sales of this day, commencing at eleven o'clock, of carpet slippers, lasting shoes, hardware, cutlery, time pieces, Wilkinson's and Sorby's patent sheepshears, chimney ornaments, &c., &c. At one o'clock, gunpowder in quarter-barrels.—Communicated.

Sale of Elegant and Useful Household Furniture.—Mr. Mort particularly directs the attention of families furnishing, and others, to his sale, this day, of the whole of the stock of Mr. Thornton, cabinetmaker and upholsterer. The sale will take place on the premises, Pitt-street, at eleven precisely, this day.—Communicated.

We are requested by Mr. Stubbs to remind capitalists and monied men of his sale, this day, at the Mart, at 12 o'clock, of the whole of Mr. George Wyer's valuable city property, situate in Castlereagh and Elizabeth streets.—Communicated.

Escape of the two Mail Robbers from Maitland Gaol.—On Wednesday afternoon, about three o'clock, James Davidson and William Smith, escaped from Maitland gaol. It will be remembered that on Monday, the 10th instant, these two men were convicted of the robbery of the Singleton mail in June last, near Maitland, and Davidson was sentenced to ten years on the roads, and Smith to eight years on the roads, both to serve the first three years in irons. From some reason we have not heard, Mr. Tristrem did not have the two men put in irons at once, probably deferring these and other arrangements until the Circuit Court sittings were over. On the afternoon of Wednesday last, the last day of the sittings, the whole of the prisoners who had not received sentence were brought down to the court-house, but Davidson, Smith, and the other sentenced prisoners were taken out as usual into the exercise yard, with the remaining prisoners in the gaol. This exercise-yard lays between the gaol itself and the south-east outer wall, and the two extremities of the exercise yard are divided off from the general yard by high and close slab palings; in the western paling is the entrance to the yard through a stout wicket door, which is of course kept locked. A gaol constable or turnkey was on Wednesday afternoon in the exercise-yard with the prisoners, and a body of them got round him and kept his attention occupied near the eastern paling while a kind of ladder was made against the western paling by placing the prisoners' beds (which had been brought out for airing) on the top of each other, and which at the time were tightly rolled up. Up this precarious ladder Davidson and Smith got, and Davidson (a tall man) first lifted Smith on to the top of the paling, and Smith then drew Davidson to the top. They now slipped down into the general yard, and so far had been entirely unobserved by the constable or the gatekeeper, who appear to have been at that moment the only officers left in the gaol. The gate is placed about the centre of the south-west outer wall, and running along inside that wall, and extending from near the gateway to the south corner of the wall, are a series of low slab buildings, which were formerly occupied as storehouses, and one of which is now occupied as a cooking-house, and the others for similar purposes. How long the two men remained in the general yard is not certain, but they had succeeded in getting on the top of one of these buildings before they were observed; the constable stationed in the exercise yard then caught sight of them, and saw Davidson lift Smith up till he got on the outer wall, and Smith in turn dragged up Davidson; Davidson then let down Smith outside by a rope, and afterwards slid or dropped down himself outside; the spot over which they went being on the south-east wall, very near the southern corner. Within a very short distance of the wall is a tolerably thick scrub of young gum-trees and bushes, affording immediate concealment from sight. Meanwhile the constable, who we understand was locked into the exercise yard with the prisoners, succeeded in giving the alarm to the gatekeeper, who was provided with a loaded musket, but did not stir from his post, whether from not comprehending what was the matter, or fearing a rush from the other prisoners, we have not learnt. Some little time elapsed before the alarm was conveyed down to the Court-house, and although instantly the police magistrate (Mr. Day) and a body of police, with a number of volunteers, rode off and scoured the bush about the gaol, no trace could be found of the two men, who got clear off. The most active exertions were made that evening, and on Thursday and yesterday, by the police, and several rumours were afloat of the men having been met with in different directions, but no certain tidings have yet been heard of their whereabouts. An investigation was held at the gaol on Thursday morning by the Under Sheriff and the Visiting Magistrate, but we are not yet acquainted with the result. The following is the description which was given of the two men after their robbing the mail: "One (Davidson) a thick, stout, determined looking man, of from 45 to 50 years old, about six feet high; the other (Smith) a slight man, of five feet seven inches or five feet eight inches high, having a thin sharp nose, and high cheek bones." Both men are well acquainted with this neighbourhood, Davidson having it is stated, served his time in the Port Stephens District, and been attached to a survey party there, and Smith having served his time or part of it with Mr. Blaxland, of Wollombi, who employed him as a groom. On the day of their trial, Davidson struck us as a tall, well-built, determined-looking man, of weather-beaten countenance, with deeply marked furrows, very little whisker, but without any savage or ferocious expression; and Smith as a man a little under the middle size, rather slight, sandy whiskers, and light brown hair, eyes rather small, and an expression of indecision in his countenance. The escape at mid-day of two desperate characters like these, who ought, in pursuance of their sentence, to have been in irons, appears to us to forcibly suggest the necessity of an inquiry into the management of the Maitland Gaol.—Maitland Mercury.

Tight Rope Performances.—On Thursday, Quinn, the Australian tight-rope performer, succeeded in walking across the River Hunter on a tight-rope; the rope was stretched across, and fastened to a tree on either side, and in his first attempt Quinn fell, but caught by his hands, when about a third of the way across, it was said from the wind being too high; he then returned, had the rope tightened, and made a second attempt, which was completely successful. On the same evening he had announced that he should fly across, and about eight o'clock he slid down the rope from the highest end, he himself being clear beneath the rope, and sustained round the body by rings attached to some slight machinery which rested on the rope, and slid along it; in sliding down Quinn discharged fireworks with both hands.—Maitland Mercury.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE IN THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.

[The following report, taken from a late number of the Polynesian, is interesting, as showing the advances to civilization making by the Sandwich Islanders.]

(Reported for the Polynesian.)

Circuit Court for the Second Judicial District, Chief Justice Lee, and Judges Richardson and Nahaolelua, on the Bench.

LUKIA, A NATIVE, v. AYING, A CHINAMAN.

This was a petition for divorce, on the ground of adultery. The defendant made default in answer and appearance; and on motion of counsel the complainant's petition was referred to a Master in Chancery to inquire into the truth of the facts set forth in the same, and report the result of his investigation to the Court.

A. W. Parsons, Esq., counsel for complainant.

THE KING v. BENJAMIN B. PARISH, ET AL.

This was an appeal from the Police Court of Lahaina. The facts of the case appeared to be as follows. On the 27th day of April last, Joseph S. Adams, master of the American whale ship America, appeared before A. W. Parsons, Esq., Justice of the Police Court of Lahaina, and made deposition on oath, that Benjamin B. Parish, H. G. O. Robinson, Thomas H. Lowrey, John M. D. Brown, and John Magreery, sailors belonging to the America, had deserted from his vessel, while lying in the roadstead of Lahaina, on the night of the 24th of April last; that he had lost at the time, a whale-boat of the value of sixty five dollars, five oars, and a boat keg of the value of twelve dollars; and that he had good reason to believe that the above named Parish and others had stolen and carried away the said boat, oars, and boat keg.

On this deposition, the Justice issued a warrant for the arrest of the parties; which was executed the same day, and the accused were brought into Court in the custody of the Sheriff. The prisoners at once objected to any proceedings of the Court in the matter, on the ground that the case did not come within the jurisdiction of the Police Court. The Court overruled the objection, and the prisoners were then called on to plead guilty or not guilty to the charge preferred against them. They then severally pleaded guilty; and the Court sentenced them to pay a fine of sixty-one dollars and sixty cents each, and to be imprisoned for the term of four months.

To this judgment of the Police Justice the prisoners' counsel took exception, on the ground that the offence of which the parties had been tried and convicted, was committed on board of an American ship, upon the high seas, not within the jurisdiction of the Hawaiian Islands, and therefore not cognizable by the tribunals of this kingdom. Upon this exception to the jurisdiction of the Police Justice, the case came before the Superior Court in Circuit, and was submitted to the decision of the Court without argument.

Chief Justice Lee, who delivered the opinion of the Court, stated that the main questions involved in this case were two. 1st. Whether the Police Justice of Lahaina had any jurisdiction over offences committed upon the high seas. 2nd. Whether the offence of which the prisoners had been tried and convicted, was committed upon the high seas, or within the territory of this kingdom and the district of Lahaina.

Upon the first question, the Chief Justice remarked, that ch. 2, art. 2, sec. 1, of the Act to organise the judiciary department, gave the Police Justices of Lahaina and Honolulu, "original jurisdiction of torts and wrongs arising upon the high seas, and the waters within His Majesty's maritime jurisdiction." To say, however, that under this clause of the statute, the Police Justice of Lahaina, or any other Justice of Judge of this Kingdom had jurisdiction of offences committed on the high seas, on board of foreign vessels, would involve an absolute absurdity;—such could never have been the intention of the legislature, for the jurisdiction of a nation could never extend beyond its territory, except in the case of piracy and the like offences, which being crimes not against any particular nation but against all mankind, might be punished in the competent tribunal of any country where the offender was found, or into which he might be carried, although committed on board of a foreign vessel on the high seas. That the true construction to be given to this statute, was, that the Police Justices of Lahaina and Honolulu had jurisdiction over torts and wrongs arising upon the high seas, when committed on board of Hawaiian vessels. That the vessels of a nation on the high seas, were considered by the law of nations as so many portions of its territory.—That in this case, where the prisoners were Americans, and the vessel American, it was clear that the Police Justice could have no jurisdiction, if the offence was committed on the high seas.

The Chief Justice then proceeded to the examination and decision of the second question, namely: Whether the offence was committed on the high seas, or within Hawaiian territory and the jurisdiction of the Police Justice. He said it was admitted that the vessel, at the time of the theft, was riding at anchor in the road of Lahaina, a Hawaiian port of entry and departure by express legislative enactment; abreast of the town; within three miles distance of, and in constant communication with the shore. This being the case, there could be no question but the offence was committed within the Hawaiian territory and the jurisdiction of the Police Justice of Lahaina. That it was the unshaken doctrine of the law of nations, that the maritime territory of every state extends to the ports, harbours, bays, mouths of rivers, adjacent parts of the sea enclosed by headlands, belonging to the same state. The general usage of nations superadds to this extent of territorial jurisdiction a distance of a marine league, or as far as a cannon shot will reach from the shore, along all the coasts of the state. Within these limits its rights of property and territorial jurisdiction are absolute and exclude those of every other nation. That the legislature of this kingdom in claiming a jurisdiction over the seas surrounding our coasts to the distance of one marine league, had done no more than simply declare the universal law of nations.

Furthermore, it was admitted that the prisoners brought the stolen property to Hawaiian shores. This, said the Chief Justice, of itself alone, was sufficient to give the police justice jurisdiction: for when a foreigner, who has committed larceny abroad, comes into the country, and brings the stolen property with him, he may be tried, convicted, and punished in the same manner as if the larceny had been committed here. This was the first case in which the question of the jurisdiction of our courts over the waters surrounding our coasts had arisen, and the Court had not come to a hasty decision. They were clearly of the opinion that the Police Justice had the requisite jurisdiction to try, convict, and sentence the prisoners.

The laws of the kingdom expressly vouchsafed for the masters of foreign vessels, entering the port of Lahaina, the protection of the laws for themselves, their officers, their men and property; and when the master of the America made his complaint, the Police Justice of Lahaina had no option to issue a warrant or not, but was bound to do as he had done.

THE KING v. KAHAKA.

This case was interesting, as illustrating one of the superstitions of the country.

The prisoner was arraigned upon an indictment charging him with assaulting and maiming an old man, named Kaimihana. The facts of the case, as they appeared in evidence, were, that in February last, the wife of the prisoner was taken very ill, and charged the old man Kaimihano with practising sorcery or witchcraft upon her, and that he was endeavouring to pray her to death. Upon this charge, Hahaka, at the solicitation of his wife, seized the old man, tied his hands, took his sick wife on his back, led the old man to a lonely place, threw him down, and charging him with witchcraft, bit off his ears and chin. That afterwards he led him to the seashore, charged him with practising sorcery upon his wife by praying to his sea-god Manno (the shark), and then compelled him to enter the sea and dive into its depths five times. At this stage of the proceedings the old man was was rescued by Kekida, a man passing by. It further appeared that the prisoner's wife died under the delusion that Kaimihana was praying her to death.

Judge Richardson charged the Jury; who, after an absence of a few minutes, returned into Court with a verdict of guilty.

The Court sentenced the prisoner to pay a fine of one hundred dollars and to be imprisoned at hard labour.

A. W. Parsons, Esq., Attorney for the prisoner.

THE KING v. NAPAHOA.

This was an appeal from the Police Court of Lahaina.

The facts of the case appeared to be that the accused was brought before the Police Justice of Lahaina on a charge of having enticed a native woman, called Kumukolu, to commit adultery with one Henry Grant. The only witness introduced against the accused was Kumukolu, who had previously been convicted of the adultery, and Napahoa took the following grounds:

1. The witness Kumukolu is inadmissible as evidence against the accused; for having been convicted of adultery, she should be excluded as being a "person infamous."

2. The witness Kumukolu should be excluded on the ground that she is the principal in the offence for which the accused is arraigned as being accessary.

3. The accused being a native Hawaiian, the Police Justice has no jurisdiction to try her.

Upon the raising of these questions of law, the Police Justice delayed judgment until the opinion of the Circuit Court could be taken.

Chief Justice Lee, in delivering the opinion of the Court, said, there could be no doubt but the offence of adultery was tainted with infamy; but in the opinion of the Court, it was not an offence destroying the competency of a witness, however much it might affect her credibility. It was not one of those heinous offences implying such a dereliction of moral principle as carries with it a conclusion of a total disregard to the obligation of an oath. It did not rank with treason, felony, forgery, perjury, subordination of perjury, and that general class of offences for which witnesses are excluded from giving their testimony on the ground of being "persons infamous."

With reference to the second point, the Court said, that whether an accomplice or principal offender, after conviction of adultery, &c., should be admitted as a witness for the government, or not, was a question to be determined by the judges, in their discretion, as might best serve the purposes of justice. That the testimony of an accomplice and principal in the offence, ought however to be weighed with great caution; and that it was the practice of courts not to convict without some corroborating evidence.

Upon the question of the jurisdiction of the Police Justice to try parties purely Hawaiian, the Court used the following language: The act to organize the judiciary department, gives the police justices jurisdiction "of all police cases proper." That is, of all such cases or offences as directly affect the peace, order, morals, and well being of the community. Pimping, the offence charged, was, in the opinion of the Court, such an offence as came under the class of "police cases proper," and consequently within the jurisdiction of the Police Justice, although the accused was a native. In cases purely civil, however, for instance debt and the like, the parties, if native, would not come within his jurisdiction. The Police Justice, in all "police cases proper," has concurrent jurisdiction over natives, with the native district Justices.

C. J. Allen, Esq., attorney for the accused.

SMART v. HUGHES.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—Your paper of this day contains, we perceive, a long advertisement emanating from Messrs. Stenhouse and Hardy, the defendants' solicitors, in which they express their discontent with your previous report of the argument in this suit, and inflict on your readers their own version, in justice to their clients, the trustees of "Mr." Hughes.

Now, as the whole of the arguments so elaborately put forth, consist of mere technical objections in alleged bar of a remedy from an act of injustice, without a particle of excuse for the injustice itself; and as the public in general, although a judge, for some purposes of all disputes of individuals on the merits, is not the judge that will or can decide on these legal subtleties, we are at a loss to understand the motive with which the trustees of "Mr." Hughes have instructed their solicitors to appeal on this head from the honorable Judge, to the honorable public.

For our part, we shall leave them in possession of the public forum with their technical, and reserve that for future discussion, if necessary, within the walls of the Supreme Court.

But, as the example has thus been set us of supplying the deficiencies of your former report, we will follow it; with respect to the only features of the case which can have any interest with the public, viz.: the plain black and white of its merits, about which there can be no mistake, and no chance of injustice to either party from misreporting.

The facts are simply the following. That, in 1836, Mr. John Terry Hughes agreed with the late Dr. Harris to purchase a piece of land, part of the Ultimo Estate, for £1000: that Dr. Harris died soon after, before receiving the money, and without having executed any conveyance, having devised the property (of course burdened with the contract, if valid) to four relatives, three of whom then resided in Ireland. That Mr. Hughes, acting on and claiming under the contract, built on the land the Victoria Mills, occupied them, let them, mortgaged them; treating a plan with certain memoranda, letters, and a signature of Dr Harris', as his title.

That since Mr. Hughes' insolvency, the defendants in that suit assuming to act as trustees of Mrs. Hughes, but dealing through Mr. Hughes' personal agency, purchased the interest of one of Dr. Harris' devisees in the land for a sum which, considered with reference to the matter in dispute, was merely nominal; that, on strength of the partial legal estate thus acquired, they manœuvred to obtain possession of the property, to the exclusion of parties claiming under Mr. Hughes' own mortgage; and that when these parties apply in the present suit to a Court of Equity for relief, Messrs. Stenhouse and Hardy's clients seek to obstruct it by the technical objections they are so anxious that your readers should appreciate.

Hitherto, the trustees of Mrs. Hughes have figured in these proceedings. An idea of a more intimate connection with Mr. Hughes did certainly occasionally afflict our imaginations, but never until their solicitors' letter let the cat out of the bag, were we permitted to see anything of this gentleman in the case, except his claws, through the canvas.

We are, gentlemen,
Your obedient servants,
HOLDEN AND M'CARTHY.

CAN IT BE TRUE?

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—I have just taken up your issue of this morning, where I find it stated that the arrangements for the removal of the Slaughter Houses out of the city cannot be effected without first obtaining leave of the Secretary of State, to dispose of the present cattle market, and apply the funds to the purchase of another site! I involuntary asked myself, can it be, that with a Mayor and Town Council, a Legislative Council, and Executive, a bit of vacant ground, enclosed with a few posts and rails, in an obscure part of a town at the antipodes, cannot be appropriated for the benefit of the inhabitants, without reference to a Secretary of State of a kingdom like England? Must a statesman like Earl Grey, with the vast political interests and concerns of all the foreign dependencies of the British Crown to attend to, be consulted by Sir Charles Augustus Fitz Roy, as to whether he may sell a stockyard, and buy a piggery? And must 50,000 citizens and British subjects have their healths jeopardized for a year or two, by the continued endurance of abominable nuisances, whilst this preposterous piece of official mummery is being enacted? I say, can it be true?

Yours, &c.,
INCREDULOUS.

POLICE REFORM.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—These are reforming times. We have had a reform of gaol discipline. We are about to have a reform of our municipal institutions. Measures are on foot for reforming the judicial departments, and commissioners are at work for the reformation of the law. There is one department of the public service, however, which has been totally forgotten, although its efficiency is of the utmost consequence—perhaps of more consequence than that of any other department—to the interests of the community. I mean the department of police.

The only purpose for which the Council has directed its attention to this subject during the past session, has been for that of retrenchment—a very essential thing in its way, but one which may be pushed too far. Constables have been lopped off here and there from the estimates for rural police; and the mounted force has been reduced to one-third, with an understanding that at the termination of the ensuing year it is to be disbanded altogether. I doubt not the former retrenchments have been judicious, but I fear that this sudden reduction and probable disbandment of the mounted police will not turn out quite so much of a saving to the country as its promoters have contended. Some people have not scrupled to say that the evident dislike of some hon. members to this corps has arisen out of the fact that its superior organization has prevented country magistrates from exercising that petty interference, and control, which the absence of all system in the formation of the rural police enables them to indulge in, with regard to the latter force. But let that pass. As to the metropolitan force, there was not a word said, except as to certain reductions in the Police Office.

The most efficient system must necessarily be the most economical in the true sense of the term. I do not suppose that the most determined advocate for retrenchment will deny this. It seems to me, therefore, that the Council would have done better by making an attempt to secure efficiency. The police establishments of the country once thoroughly organised, it would have been easy to see how far a saving could be effected without injury to the public service.

The thing most needed is centralization. There should be an Inspector-General or some such officer;—perhaps a Board of Commissioners would be better—to control the entire police of the country. An appointment of this description has been recommended by select committees, but the Legislature have not acted upon this recommendation, because it involves the creation of a new office, and of an additional charge upon the revenue. I think, however, that this is viewing the matter in a wrong light. A central directory power would render the police in general more vigilant and efficient. Superior efficiency on the part of the police would diminish crime; the diminution of crime and its punishment would reduce the judicial and gaol expense of the country; consequently, such an appointment would, in all probability, be a source of retrenchment. A much stronger reason, however, for making it is, that it would add to the security of life and property.

As to what should be the strength of a mounted police force, and how such a force should be distributed, I possess no means of judging; but I am convinced that a force of this description is necessary. Indeed, this necessity was virtually admitted by the advocates for disbanding the Mounted Police; and it was understood that measures were to be taken for the organization of a body more strictly civil in its character to succeed the present corps. I am far from wishing to contend that the mounted police, as at present constituted, is a corps of the most efficient kind; but I do contend, that it has within it more of the elements of efficiency than either the metropolitan or the rural police. The Council ought therefore to have reformed instead of abolishing it. They might have called upon the Government to change the distribution of the force; to substitute inspectors not holding commissions in the army or commissions of the peace, and subject to the direction of the magistracy, for the gentlemen of plumes and epaulets who care for nobody but their military superiors:—to substitute a plain and substantial equipment for the gaudy trappings which are at present in use. All this would have been easy, and I do not anticipate that the Government would have felt any difficulty in complying with such requests. Here, then, would have been an efficient mounted force of a civil character, with men well disciplined and accustomed to their duties.

In the police of Sydney there is great room for improvement. In the first place, I protest against the policy of combining the magisterial office with that of superintendent. I believe the two offices to be as incompatible with each other as would be those of Chief Justice, and Attorney-General, or High Sheriff. No doubt the head of the metropolitan police should be a gentleman fully qualified to sit upon the bench, but he is strictly an Executive officer, and his duties should be wholly of the executive nature. These duties, too, if efficiently performed, would be quite enough to occupy his whole time and attention. In the second place, the inspectors ought to be in a very different position to that which they now occupy. In the police of London, and in that of Adelaide, which is in this part of the world the nearest approach to the English model, the inspectors of police are really officers of the force, in the common acceptation of the term. A proper degree of deference and respect is paid to them by their men, and, as a natural consequence, they command the respect and attention of their fellow-citizens in general. The inspector, too, is upon much the same footing with the head of the force, as is a regimental officer with his colonel. The consequence of all this is, that a far higher class of men are obtained as inspectors than can be procured here, where the office entails rather degradation than respect, and where the inspector is as far removed from the dignity of the superintendent as is the meanest constable. In Adelaide, for instance, the junior inspector, some years since (and perhaps still) was a gentleman who had held a Captain's commission in the line, and who was then on half-pay. I admit that the Sydney inspectors are as efficient as could be expected under such a system, as the present, but reform the system, and there will be a decided change for the better.

This subject, however, is a large one, and as I feel that I have already trespassed too long on your attention, I must defer what I have further to say for another communication.

September 22, 1849.

To the Editors of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Gentlemen,—On perusing your article of this morning, referring to the late melancholy affair at Kissing Point, I find you have erred most materially in one point, as such mistake may influence the public in forming an unfavourable opinion of the conduct of the youth, E. W. Shaddock, I trust you will not refuse to correct the error referred to. It would appear from your account of the affair, that E. W. S. was the challenger, whereas the contrary is the real state of the case. Young Moore distinctly proved that the youth Foaley on leaving Moore's house, said to Shaddock, "Ted, I want to speak to you;" upon this Shaddock followed him out of the house, he, Moore, also following them, when he distinctly heard Foaley say, "Ted, I want to fight you at 7 o'clock on Monday morning;" the answer of Shaddock was, "that will not answer, I must have my breakfast first." "Well then," remarked F., "let it be eight," which being assented to, no other words passed.

I remain, gentlemen,
Yours, &c.,
RICHARD HIPKISS.

ENGLISH EXTRACTS.

MONEY-MARKET AND CITY INTELLIGENCE.

(From the Times, June 13.)

Tuesday Evening.

The premium on gold at Paris is 16 per mille, which, at the English Mint price of £3 17s. 10½d. per ounce for standard gold, gives an exchange of 25.55; and the exchange at Paris on London at short being 25.62½, it follows that gold is 0.29 dearer in London than in Paris.

By advices from Hamburgh the price of gold is 438¾ per mark, which, at the English Mint price of £3 17s. 10½d. per ounce for standard gold, gives an exchange of 13.11¾; and the exchange at Hamburgh on London at short being 13.11¼, it follows that gold is 0.23 per cent. dearer in Hamburgh than in London.

The course of exchange at New York on London is 108½ per cent., and the par of exchange between England and America being 109 23-40 per cent., it follows that the exchange is 1·08 per cent. against England. But the quoted exchange at New York being for bills at 60 days' sight, the interest must be deducted from the above difference.

The English funds have again experienced an advance, the favourable tendency of the market having been increased by the decided tone last night in the House of Commons against interference of any kind in the contentions of Europe. The first quotation of Consols was 91¾ to ⅞, whence they rose to 92¼. From this point, however, there was a little reaction, caused by an impression from the statements of the Opposition in the French Chamber, and the absence of any decided announcement from the Government to the contrary, that the contest at Rome was again more serious than had been anticipated, and the last price was 92 buyers. For the 17th of July they closed 92⅛ to ¼. Bank Stock left off 193½ to 195; Reduced, 90⅞ to ⅛; Three-and-a-Quarter per Cents., 91¾ to ⅞; Long Annuities, 8⅝; India Stock, 249 to 252; India Bonds, 68s. to 71s.; and Exchequer Bills, 45s. to 48s. premium.

FIRING AT THE QUEEN.

House of Commons.

Lord J. Russell.—Sir, before I move the postponement of two orders of the day that stand on the paper for to-night, I think it right, in order to allay public apprehension, to say that, a statement having been made in some of the newspapers of Saturday evening, that a treasonable attempt had been made against the life of Her Majesty, I can state, that although it is unfortunately true that a pistol was discharged at the Queen when Her Majesty was passing on her return home to Buckingham Palace, it has been found that there is no reason to accuse the person who discharged the pistol of a treasonable attempt, and that it is a crime more remarkable for its baseness than its atrocity. (Hear, hear.) I have only further to state that I am sure if it had been an attempt of another kind I should have had the cordial assent of this house (great cheering) to an address to Her Majesty, congratulating her on the preservation of a life so valuable. (Loud cheers.) I may add, that Her Majesty on this occasion, which might have been one of a most serious nature, acted with her usual intrepidity and self-possession. (Loud cheering.) The noble lord then moved that the committee on the Poor Relief (Ireland) Bill be postponed until the 4th June, and (as we understood) also the Ecclesiastical Commission Bill.

Mr. J. O'Connell hoped it would not be considered an intrusion if he said that, heavy as were the misfortunes of Ireland, it would be regarded as an aggravation of those misfortunes that the dastardly miscreant who had committed this outrage was an Irishman. He would say, however, that he believed amidst the greatest excitement that prevailed in Ireland last year there would not have been found one among the fiercest, the wildest, the most unruly that took part in those unhappy events, who would have harboured a feeling of personal insult towards her Majesty. (Cheers.) And even now, although the misfortunes of Ireland were absorbing the attention of every one in that country, he might say that they would all be in a moment forgotten in one general burst of congratulation and fervent joy that our beloved Sovereign had escaped unhurt from this outrage upon her person. (Cheers.)

RUSSIA.

The following ukase, relating to the Russian intervention in Hungary, has been published in St. Petersburgh:—

"By the grace of God, We, Nicholas I., Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias, &c., declare to the nation, having, by our manifesto of the 14th of March, 1848, informed our subjects of the miseries which afflicted western Europe, we at the same time made known how we were ready to meet our enemies wherever they might show themselves, and that we should, without sparing ourselves, in conjunction indissoluble with our sacred Russia, defend the honour of the Russian name, and the inviolability of our frontiers.

The commotions and rebellions of the west have not since then ceased. Guilty delusion, enticing the thoughtless crowd with visionary dreams of that prosperity which can never be the fruit of wilfulness and obstinacy, has entered the east and the dominions contiguous to us, subjects of the Turkish empire, viz., Moldavia and Wallachia. Only by the presence of our troops, together with those of Turkey, has order been restored and maintained; but in Hungary and Transylvania the efforts of the Austrian Government, distracted already by another war with foreign and domestic enemies in Italy, have not yet been able to triumph over rebellion. On the contrary, strengthening itself by hordes of our Polish traitors of 1831, and of others, foreigners, outcasts, runaways, and vagrants, the rebellion has developed itself there to a most threatening degree.

"In the midst of these unfortunate events the Emperor of Austria has addressed himself to us with the wish for our assistance against our common enemies. We shall not refuse him.

"Having called to the assistance of this righteous enterprise the Almighty Leader of Battles and Lord of Victories, we have commanded our armies to move forward for the extinction of rebellion, and the destruction of audacious and evil-intentioned men, who endeavour to disturb the peace of our dominions also.

"Let God be with us, and who shall be against us?

"So—we are convinced of it—so feels, so hopes, so aspires our God-preserved nation, every Russian, every true subject ours, and Russia will fulfil her mission.

"Given at St. Petersburgh the 26th day of April, in the year from the birth of Christ, 1849, and the 24th of our reign.

"Nicholas I."

COLONIZATION.

Colonization is now the great subjugator of the earth, and the British people are the leaders of this movement. The Saxon race is planting its feet firmly in every quarter of the globe. In the United States of America, a mighty empire has been founded, already equal in enterprise, intelligence, wealth, and power, to any in the world. Another great empire in the Southern Ocean looms before us—the germs of which are already widely planted in the flourishing colonies of Australia. At the Southern point of Africa, also, on a fertile soil, and under a beautiful sky, thriving colonies are now settling; and in Hindostan, Sumatra, Borneo, and China, there are already laid the bases of future empires. In all the quarters of the globe, therefore,—in America, Australia, Asia, and Africa, the Saxon race, migrating originally from the northern shores of Europe, is rapidly diffusing itself, carrying with it everywhere the seeds of free institutions, of manly independence, of Christian civilisation, of social prosperity and well being.

The free states of the North-Western part of the American Union, and the British colonies in Canada, have hitherto been the favourite resort of emigrants from this country. In 1847 no fewer than 142,154 emigrants left this country for the States, and 109,680 for Canada. The great attraction of those regions for the emigrating population of Britain, doubtless consists in the cheapness of land there, and the facility of reaching their coasts. In the North Western States and Canada, the richest land may be had for between 5s. and 6s. an acre, though in the neighbourhood of settled towns, it is, of course, considerably more; and the cost of a steerage passage to New York or Quebec, the chief emigrant ports, is from £4 10s. to £5 10s. There is also, it is true, a long inland voyage to be performed; but taking all things into account, it is cheaper and easier to get at the virgin soils of the States and Canada, than almost any other of the new lands now sought after by emigrants from European countries.

Nothing can exceed the fertility of that magnificent region known as the great valley of the Mississippi, a valley interlaced with 15,000 miles of navigable rivers, containing 700,000,000 acres of the richest and most fertile land, and competent to grow food for the entire existing population of Europe. The chief portion of this valley is yet waiting the occupation of man. Although equal to the maintenance of 150,000 millions of people, it is only here and there, at remote intervals along the banks of the great rivers which roll through it, cheered by the inhabitants of industrious and civilized men. The same remarks apply to the North Western States of Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Illinois, and to the extensive regions of Western Canada, which are competent to afford more than elbow room to the entire unemployed population of Europe, and to their swarms of emigrants, for generations to come.

Turn we now for a moment to the great south land of Australia—an island almost as large as Europe, fringed with a luxuriant territory, and with commodious bays and harbours in which the proudest navies may securely ride. Australia is as yet the youngest of all civilized countries. Its history is confined almost entirely to the present century. In 1801, its white population amounted to only 8000, chiefly convicts. About this time it was discovered that the country was eminently adapted for sheep, and the growth of wool; free settlers resorted to New South Wales, and it began to assume a flourishing aspect. New settlements were made round its shores, at Western Australia, South Australia, Port Phillip, and Port Essington. Already the population of these colonies amounts to about 300,000, and they export produce to the value of £2,000,000 sterling per annum.

Until very recently, the interior of Australia was as little known as the central regions of Africa; only a few fertile districts round the coast were settled. The greatest additions recently made to our knowledge of the interior have been contributed by Sir Thomas Mitchell, Dr. Leichhardt, and Captain Sturt. Sir Thomas Mitchell pushed his way into the interior, and then came upon a country which seemed to him "the fairest region on earth; plains and downs of rich black mould, on which grew in profusion the panicum-laeodine grass, and which was finely interspersed with lines of wood, which grew in the hollows, and marked the courses of streams." Of another part, he says, "the country is adorned by hills of the most romantic form, presenting outlines which surpass in picturesque beauty the fairest creations of the painter." In the course of his journey, he came upon the largest river he had yet met with in Australia, and which he named the Victoria. The whole country through which he pursued this magnificent river, was, he says, better watered than any other portion of Australia he had seen; the plains were verdant, and the luxuriant pasture surpassed in quality, as it did in extent, anything of the kind he had ever seen; and he adds, that it seemed sufficient to supply the whole world with animal food! All this splendid tract of country is as yet entirely unoccupied, and has only been trodden by the feet of the Australian aborigines. The knowledge that such a region exists in the heart of Australia adds vastly to the importance of that country, and proclaims the future greatness of that extensive portion of the globe.

While America and Canada seem destined to be the greatest wheat growing countries in the world, Australia seems destined to be the greatest of all known pastoral countries. The extreme salubrity of its atmosphere, and rich verdure of its soil, render it the very paradise of flocks and herds. The increase of these, within the present century, has been prodigious. Within the last five years, the number of sheep and cattle in New South Wales has been doubled, notwithstanding the numbers that have been slaughtered and boiled down merely for the sake of their tallow. Horned cattle have increased in that colony at the rate of 145,000 a year during the last four years, although about 36 000 head had been slaughtered in each year for the tallow, while the carcasses were thrown away as useless, there being no population to consume them. The food thus wasted yearly in the Australian colonies would be more than sufficient to feed the entire population of Scotland! The number of sheep alone in New South Wales was, in 1847, above 10,000,000, and of cattle about 2,000,000; or about fifty sheep and ten horned cattle to every head of the population,—men, women, and children. The number of cattle and sheep in Port Phillip and South Australia, as well as their extraordinary increase, are equally remarkable as in the colony of New South Wales.

The great difficulty is, to find shepherds to tend the flocks, and labourers to do the indispensable work of these colonies. The demand for labour is great; every arrival from Australia repeats the same tale. "We want labourers; we want shepherds; we want mechanics; we want woman servants." And our unemployed labourers at home, who have so long been waiting in the market-places, eagerly asking to be hired; shopkeepers and tradesmen, who have, perhaps, been engaged in the losing struggle of competition, until their gains have almost entirely disappeared; many who have large families of growing children, about whose future, parents cannot help but feel anxious; young men about to settle themselves in the world, and desirous of securing an honourable independence—these are now turning their eyes wistfully towards the young countries beyond the sea, as their wished-for homes and the scenes of their future labours. In those countries they see the prospect of abundant employment. Labour is there so well remunerated, and land so cheap, that three or four years of steady application are commonly found sufficient to place the industrious man in a position in which he can amass sufficient capital to purchase a small property of his own. Labourers and mechanics in the towns can, in most instances, become proprietors, under circumstances which, in older countries, would condemn them to a long life of toil, without being able to do more than merely sustain existence on the most pinching scale. In the colonies labour is sweet, because it is mingled with hope. In old countries, the labourer in most cases sees himself doomed to be a labourer for life; in the new countries, the labourer has in near prospect a farm and flock of his own. In all respects, the labourer acquires a greatly improved position by his change of country—he labours freer, more hopefully, more independently, and for a much more satisfactory rate of remuneration.

The classes of labourers most in request in Australia, are agriculturists, shepherds, miners, blacksmiths, and mechanics of various kinds. We would also observe, that emigration to Australia opens an avenue for the relief of the toiling classes of women—for the poor sempstress, the domestic servant, the shopwoman, the governess. The demand for the services of women in the colonies is great and increasing. Domestic servants, housekeepers, governesses, dressmakers, shopkeepers, and (let us whisper it) wives are wanted alike in New South Wales, in Port Phillip, and in South Australia. We know there is a delicacy which hinders female emigration; but it is a matter for serious consideration whether this ought not to be struggled with and overcome, when the objects to be contended for are so laudable—honourable industry, useful employment, competence, and independence.

Sudden Death of Lady Blessington.—Our Paris correspondent, in his letter dated Monday, 5 in the afternoon, announces this distressing event as follows:—"We have all been much shocked this afternoon by the sudden death of Lady Blessington. Her Ladyship dined yesterday with the Duchess de Grammont, and returned home late in her usual health and spirits. In the course of this morning she felt unwell, and her homœopathic medical adviser, Dr. Simon, was sent for. After a short consultation the doctor announced that his patient was dying of apoplexy, and his prediction was unhappily verified but too rapidly, as her Ladyship expired in his arms about an hour and a half ago. Poor Lady Blessington! She was loved and admired by all who had the happy privilege of knowing her, and of joining in those social circles of the worthy and the wise who congregated around her hospitable board. It was but the day before yesterday that she got into her new house in the Rue de Cercle, where her delightful réunions were eagerly looked for as an oasis in this republican desert, where the few good and great men who yet linger in this distracted country hoped to find a brief respite from the turmoil of party strife. It was but last week that Lady Blessington was dining at the Elysée, and remarked to Prince Louis Napoleon with how much pleasure she looked forward to her residence in Paris, and now Mors sola fatetur quantula sunt hominum corpuscula. Every one will attribute this sad occurrence to cholera. But Lady Blessington died of apoplexy. Cholera has had enough laid to its charge, and even now at the present moment it has affected poor Carlotta Grisi, who is seriously ill, but it is hoped that she may recover, as she is better than she was last night. Last night it killed ten deputies and Madam Visconti. Poor Lord Wallscourt was carried off rapidly last week, as he did not send for advice in time. Lady Normanby is also very unwell, and is going to Chantilly to-morrow, to escape from the intolerable heat which is now raging.—Morning Post.

An official return of the unoccupied dwelling-houses in Liverpool, of a rental of £30 and upwards, gives the extraordinary number of 5900.

CAMDENVILLE.
THAT BEAUTIFUL RESIDENCE ON the NEWTON ROAD, with extensive Outbuildings, Spacious Gardens, and Pleasure Grounds, formerly the Seat of Robert Bourne, Esquire, and now in the occupation of Joseph S. Hanson, Esq.
☞ Several applications having been made for the disposal of this property by private contract, the proprietor has come to the determination of submitting it for unreserved sale by public competition, thereby affording to intending purchasers the most favourable means of obtaining it;—and in calling public attention to the sale, the Auctioneer would beg particularly to impress upon their notice the important fact of how rare a thing it is that property of this description is ever brought to the hammer, such an opportunity as this is therefore of peculiar importance.

HOUSES IN CUMBERLAND-STREET NORTH.
TWO COTTAGES IN GLOUCESTER-STREET NORTH.
THREE BUILDING ALLOTMENTS, PADDINGTON,
THREE HUNDRED ACRE FARM, AT BLACK CREEK.

MR. GEORGE A. LLOYD
HAS been favoured with instructions to submit the above named valuable properties for unreserved sale by auction, at the City Mart, 474, George-street,
ON THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27,
At 12 o'clock precisely.
In submitting these properties to the notice of the public, the auctioneer considers that no comment or recommendation is needed at his hands For where they are so well known, and so easy of examination, as in this instance, no course can be so satisfactory as a personal inspection, which is now therefore earnestly solicited from every one disposed to purchase. An explanatory description of each property is therefore alone subjoined.
The beautiful villa residence of CAMDENVILLE is situated on the western side of the New Town Road, about a mile beyond the Toll Bar, in the immediate vicinity of the seats of W. Fanning, Esq., R. M. Robey, Esq., J. F. Josephson, Esq., J. Wilford, Esq., Felix Wilson, Esq., Mrs. Reibey, and many other influential persons. The house is a handsome specimen of the modern style of villa architecture, no expense was spared in the erection to render it equally elegant as commodious, which, with the beauty of the site on which it stands, renders it without exception, one of the prettiest places in the neighbourhood of Sydney The building is surrounded on three sides by a wide verandah, and contains on the ground floor—spacious entrance hall, dining room 18 x 20, parlour 16 x 18, breakfast room, bed room, store room, butler's pantry FIRST FLOOR—spacious vestibule, drawing room 20 x 22, library, and three large bed rooms; on the basement, kitchens, wash-house, and three cellars. The outbuildings comprise — stables, coach-house, gardener's house, with four rooms, &c.
The grounds in front are tastefully laid out as lawn and flower garden, and at the rear are large kitchen garden, vineyard, and paddock. The land comprises about eleven acres, the half of which only being occupied by the house and grounds, affords to any purchaser so inclined, an opportunity of selling the spare land in allotments, which being so much in demand out there, would undoubtedly go far towards paying off the entire purchase money, its position giving it a most unusual extent of frontage.
THE PROPERTY IN CUMBERLAND AND GLOUCESTER STREETS is described in deeds as—"All that parcel of land, containing 13 perches, parish of St. Philip; allotment No. 1 of section 87, bounded on the west by Cumberland street 70 links, on the south by lot No. 11, 127 links, on the east by Gloucester-street 70 links, and on the north by allotment nine, 137 links."
Upon the frontage to Cumberland-street is erected a very good brick house, of four rooms, now let at nine shillings per week; adjoining which is a sufficient space for the erection of one or two more houses, at present used as a yard and garden.
Upon the frontage to Gloucester-street are erected two small cottages, let at 6s. per week each.
The situation of this property is extremely good, being close to Cumberland-place. The houses are always tenanted; and at a very small expense the rent roll would be capable of much improvement.
THE ALLOTMENTS AT PADDINGTON are beautifully situated, at the corner of the Point Piper and South Head Roads, and command some of the finest views in that delightful neighbourhood. As a site for a private residence the position is admirable.
THE FARM consists of 360 acres of rich land, on the banks of Black Creek, Hunter River, adjoining the estates of Messrs. Coulson and Duguid, and was selected many years since by a resident as one of the choicest spots in that district; it can therefore be strongly recommended to any one in want of property of that description.
The titles to all the properties are first-rate, and every information relative to them can be obtained from the auctioneer.
Terms—Liberal. 4519

LEASES FOR SEVEN, FOURTEEN, AND TWENTY-ONE YEARS.

ON Friday, the 28th September next, the following lands belonging to the Church and School Estates, will be put up to auction, at the Land Sales Room, Old Military Barracks, at 11 A.M. precisely.
The following is the plan upon which these lands will be offered for public competition.
A lease will be granted for twenty-one years, the tenant having the option to determine it at the expiration of the first or second term of seven years, the rental of the second or third terms will be successively increased by half the amount of the annual rent of the first term, viz., in the following ratio, 4, 6, 8.
The Lease will not contain any clause to prevent underletting, but the under-tenants will in no way be recognised by the Government; and the original lessee, unless a transfer be formally executed by the Agent, will be held responsible for the due payment of the rent.
The usual reservation as to making roads, constructing bridges, &c., will be introduced; but the reservation will not extend to timber, which the tenant will be allowed to cut.
The rent for the first year must be paid on the day of sale; after which period the rent will be payable in advance, yearly, when the annual rent is below thirty pounds, and half-yearly, when the rent is not less than that sum.
Any lands not bid for at the day of sale, will be open to selection by private contract at the upset price. Lithographed plans and further particulars may be obtained on application to the Agent.
